C.E. Barrett

came over and try to dissuade them from their purpose. I knew his influence at Lindale was considerable, and felt that he could actually persuade the mob to desist. I drove over home, where I stayed a few moments, and returned to John Burn's office, where, by previous agreement, I met Judge himself. John Burn, Esq., Taylor, said, "I have received and discussed the information you have given me, and I am yet to ready his defense, which has been very well looked for by the people here, and this afternoon, when he gave out for the following statement:

On the day following the murder of W. Stewart I went to Lindale, in company with two deputies, Wig Smith and W. H. and, in the course of the day arrested Mr. Jones, colored, and Will Jones, white, a negro, who was tried by Justice King, charged with murder. The prisoners were sent to jail and placed in the county Judge was agreed upon by Judge McFerrin for trial, and County Attorney Walker, as the attorney who would hold the examining trial. Thereupon arrived a delegation of citizens from Lindale down and tried to exact from Walker a promise to allow the examining trial to the public on Tuesday, despite the fact that he and his deputies in the court house, and the family, were with pressing business, had yet got ready his defense, which has been very well looked for by the people here, and this afternoon, when he gave out for the following statement:
